THE JAPANESE MAIDEN.

Far away in old Japan,
Oh! that's very, very far you see!
Lives a maiden with a fan
Daintily a-sipping at her tea;
Eyes a-slant and hair a-shine,
Black as night upon a raven's wing,
Lovely is this maid of mine
And so sweetly does she sing:—

Tea leaves are murmuring, Hua-la-la!
Hua-la-la! Hua-la-la!
Petals of cherry bloom flutt'ring down
Scented shower above you;
Petals of cherry bloom flutt'ring down
Kiss the maid in her silken gown,
Kiss her hair, her cheek so brown;
Cherry blooms sing, "I love you!"
Ah! ———— Ah! ————
Kiss her hair, her cheek so brown;
Cherry blooms sing, "I love you!"

Thin as eggshell is her cup,
Oh! that's thin as ever it can be!
Slender fingers lift it up
While she sits a-sipping at her tea;
Twinkling go the tiny feet
As her tinkling samisen she strings,
Smiles the dusky maiden sweet
While a quaint refrain she sings:—

Tea leaves are murmuring, Hua-la-la!
Hua-la-la! Hua-la-la!
Petals of cherry bloom flutt'ring down
Scented shower above you;
Petals of cherry bloom flutt'ring down
Kiss the maid in her silken gown,
Kiss her hair, her cheek so brown;
Cherry blooms sing, "I love you!"
Ah! ———— Ah! ————
Kiss her hair, her cheek so brown;
Cherry blooms sing, "I love you!"
